Stories for a Winter's Eve

A Beloved Holiday Tradition Returns to Central Vermont for its 7th Year

Stories for a Winter's Eve creates the magic and warmth of gathering around the fireplace with friends and family to share stories and songs of the season. Featuring original short stories by Vermont authors and songs by Vermont musicians Pete Sutherland and Patti Casey, this truly local production will grace the stage of the East Montpelier Old Meeting House on Saturday, December 22 for two shows only, at 3 pm and 7 pm. This year's shows will feature stories by cast members Kathryn Blume, Patti Casey, and Pete Sutherland, and a new one from Stephen Kiernan.

Former Vermont Stage Company artistic director Mark Nash will be joined by actress Kathryn Blume to share funny, poignant, and heartwarming tales of friendship, generosity, and community — stories that remind us of the connections we feel during this special time of year. Ornamented by Casey and Sutherland's original music, Stories for a Winter's Eve brings warmth to the season's long, cold nights and celebrates the turning from dark to light up here in the north country.

This is the 7th year this show has made a home at the Old Meeting House, and tickets tend to go quickly. Although this is absolutely a family-friendly event, small children may find it difficult to sit quietly through the stories. Refreshments will be available at intermission.
